Ode to summer colors in yellows, greens, and blues

If anyone would wonder what my paintings are about, there isn't much to get. My pieces, much like abstract artist Mark Rothko's paintings, are about creating simple moods and impressions.

Many of Rothko's paintings are nothing more than line, shape, and color, which are the building blocks of art. His works evoked simple emotions. My paintings here in summery yellows, greens, and blues are meant to evoke simple emotions, too, and project a quiet serenity.

Annie's clippers will travel

What a sweet idea I thought when my barber friend Annie told me she was going to need a new business card that catered to shut-ins and those unable to drive to her barber shop for haircuts. Her new business? HAVE CLIPPERS WILL TRAVEL. So what kind of business card did I design for Annie? A photo of Annie inside her new lime green Ford Fiesta, heading out to an appointment with those clippers!

Look for this painting at MetLife golf outing

My friends Jane Bertolino and Jo Huber are conducting the 3rd Annual MetLife Golf Classic for St. Jude on Friday, June 22, at Quail Meadows Golf Course. Cost is $75 per golfer or $300 per foursome. To request an entry form, contact Jo Huber at johuber@mtco.com. To the right is a painting I'm donating to the event as a raffle prize. Doesn't the painting alone make you want to sign up and play at the event? :-)

Feel free to forward this enews to friends and colleagues!
