The holidays are upon us and so are my holiday cards

If you're like me, you never get tired of receiving personal, handwritten notecards through the snail mail. While I so enjoy receiving personal notecards, I also enjoy creating my own notecard line with all kinds of images, including this image I created just for the holidays, Mary's Child, based on one of my paintings and includes words by my brother Marc.

If you'd like a set of 12 of these Mary's Child holiday notecards, they are on special throughout November. Cost is only $24.95. You can pay by personal check or I can bill you through PayPal. To make an order, contact me at Suzette@SuzetteBoulais.com.

"The Hero's Adventure" continues

Thanks to all who attended "The Hero's Adventure" discussion I facilitated on Sunday, October 7 at Peoria Public Library North. It was the first in a series of six Power of Myth documentaries where writer and mythologist Joseph Campbell talks with journalist Bill Moyers about key historical heroic figures and what constitutes the heroic journey. It was a full house, with over 40 people in attendance, and included lots of insightful comments and input.

The second segment in the six-part series is called The Message of Myth. It deals with the stories of Creation and how man has historically used myths to help make sense of his place in the universe.

If you would be interested in attending a second discussion session on The Message of the Myth, contact me at Suzette@Suzette Boulais.com.

See Peace

Now's the time to be thinking of holiday gifts for friends and family. Ask me about my See Peace line of t-shirts and sweatshirts that are available in a variety of colors. For prices, contact me at Suzette@SuzetteBoulais.com.
