Suzette's artwork reflects the gray days of autumn

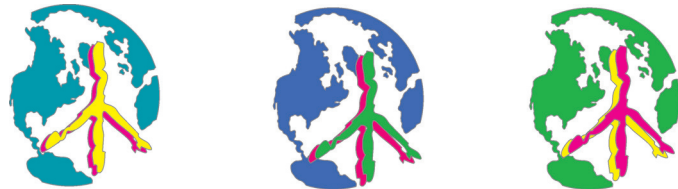

While I can't help but appreciate all colors on the color spectrum, for some unknown reason, my psyche seems to gravitate to warm, rich browns, golds and ochres when I pick up the paintbrush. My psyche also gravitates to painting abstract landscapes that show just a hint of light on the canvas. This recent abstract landscape to the right, along with several other similar pieces, are now on display at Floral Expressions in Peoria, Illinois. Plan to drop by to see them!

Picture This Gallery holds art reception

One of my greatest joys is contributing pieces of artwork to non-profit organizations to help them generate additional revenue for specific services, programs, and operations.

On September 23 my "Sun, Sun, Son" piece was on display at an art reception held at the Picture This Gallery for artists who made contributions to the Mental Health Association. You can see my piece in the background behind me and Picture This Gallery owner Cheryl Dean.

Peace be with you...

A dear friend of mine who lives outside the Chicago area has devoted herself to living a life of peace. As a follower of Martin Luther King Jr. and Ghandi, she has promoted living a peaceful existence through a series of classes she's taught that celebrate diversity. She's so devoted to peace that she's chosen this word as a vanity plate for her car. Because peace means so much to her, I created these notecards and gave them as a birthday gift last month.

If you have an affinity for the word peace, too, I'll be happy to print some "Peace be with you..." notecards. They're only $1.75 per card.

Feel free to forward this enews to friends and colleagues!
