As we know, life is all about change. And so you can imagine how surprised three young brothers were to find out earlier this spring that there would soon be a new addition to their family - a little sister.

When my own youngest sister, Celeste, gave birth to Chloe Celeste on April 24, my gift to her and her family was a painting which I called, "A Touch of Pink." The painting, done in acrylics, is of a soft summer sun, with hints of pink coming through several shades of blue water. "We are thrilled with the priceless original you gave us," remarked my sister. "It is inspirational and beautiful. It is such a personal reflection of my family. I just love it, and each day I look at it, I love it more. It lights up our home."
